Dublin, Nov. 24 .- Erskine Childers. chief lieutenant of Eamon de Valera. was executed here today.

He was executed at 7 o'clock this morning for having had an automatic pistol in his possession, it is announced in an official bulletin given out by the

While the method of execution was not officially described, it is believed it was by shooting.

The brief army report states that Childers was tried by a military court at Portobello Barracks, Dublin, November 17. charged with being in possession, without proper authority, of an automatic pistol when apprehended by National forces, November 10, at Aunamoe House, County Wicklow.
The accused, the report adds, was found guilty and sentenced to death. and the finding and sentence being duly confirmed, the execution was carried out this morning.

The fate of Childers had been hanging in the balance for several days while court actions were being fought out over his military trial, but an adverse finding was given by the master of the rolls yesterday on application for a stay of judgment.

Machine Gun and Rifle Fire

The concerted machine gun and rife firing in several districts of the city last night, believed to have been staged as a demonstration against the expected execution of Childers, exceeded in intensity and duration all previous experiences of this nature. Thus far, however, no casualties have been reported.

Bullets began to fly soon after 9 o'clock, and the din lasted until after midnight. The firing ranged over the center of the city and thus had the effect of terrifying the maximum number of people, for the height of its intensity coincided with the outpouring of the theatre crowds.

Many of these persons fled back to the theatres for shelter, and the main streets were speedily emptled of pedestrians. The tramcars continued to operate, however, but bullets cut the overhead wires on some lines and the passengers were forced to make their
